

BOY SCOUTS GET MEDALS

Two Tokens for Live-Saving Among Honors Conferred

Impressive ceremonies marked the Court of Honor conducted last night in Courtroom No. 654, City Hall, when the Philadelphia Council of the Boy Scouts of America made its prize awards.

Mortimer L. Schiff, of New York, vice president of the National Council, warned the Scouts not to be affected by the spirit of restlessness sweeping over the country. Its greatest danger, he said, was the effect it had on the young, causing them to assume a lack of responsibility toward duty.

E. T. Stotesbury, treasurer of the Philadelphia Council, spoke on the necessity of character and the opportunities that awaited boys who develop strong characters.

A silver medal of honor for life saving was awarded August Pagel, Jr. A bronze medal for life saving was presented William J. Weaver. First-aid service bars were awarded Ernest Levy and Joseph Thalhauer. Twenty-three Scouts were presented eagle badges, the highest honor that may be earned through study and work by a Scout. More than 200 persons were present. Charles Edwin Fox presided.
